Village Boys and Girls To Plant Victory Gardens

A drive has been launched thru Will county to organize the boys and girls of the villages in the county into 4H clubs similar to the clubs in which so many farm boys and girls are active.

A group headed by Fred Francis, supervisor of New Lenox township who has been active in Farm Bureau work and 4H club activities, has been contacting various organizations thru the county to sponsor local 4H clubs with the object in mind to stimulate the planting of Victory Gardens and other activities.

The Mokena Civic Association has agreed to sponsor a Victory Garden program which will give the young people the desired 4H credits in the village. These will be supervised thru the Will County Farm Bureau.

At the meeting of the Association Monday evening, Attorney John Savage of Joliet and Fred Francis addressed the Association and it has been tentatively proposed that a plot of ground be secured which will be divided among boys and girls and not only 4H credits will be allowed, but cash awards will be offered for the best garden. This will also be in accord with the US Government program to prevent a food shortage which seems in the offing at this time and all are asked to help on the home front. This program is now in its infancy and the entire program will be expanded as soon as the various organizations and groups work out the details which will be announced shortly.

Tuesday evening Mr. Francis, Attorney Savage and Arthur States appeared before the Frankfort Lions Club and outlined the program above mentioned and the Club agreed to sponsor a local 4H club with Arthur Bauch and Harold Schroth as local leaders.

Dr. W. V. Hedges pointed out that a group of young folks have already organized a local Victory Club which last year played an important part in the various salvage drives and also planted local gardens. In addition this club has earned over $100 which has been donated to the Red Cross, USO and other organizations.

Mr. Francis was much impressed with this club and stated it can be used as a nucleus for a local 4H club. It was also proposed to secure a plot of ground to be used for a local community Victory Garden.

In addressing the Lions club, Attorney Savage made it very clear that with the rationing of canned goods the well known can opener will be relegated to the scrap heap and American people will not be getting their food out of tin cans, but will have to raise their own food.

At New Lenox the program outlined has also been taken up and will be managed by Mr. Moore, principal of the New Lenox public school.

DISABLED VETERANS RELIEF

By executive order, Gov. Dwight H. Green has just inaugurated a comprehensive long range program to take care of disabled veterans of the war.

The Governor's order describes as "urgent and very grave" the state's responsibility toward the thousands of Illinois men who have already been honorably discharged from the armed forces on account of disability. The objectives of the state's program include medical examination and treatment of returned veterans; scientific determination of the class of employment best suited to them; vocational training; guidance in finding work and continuing friendly oversight until the men are able to get along by themselves.

"I am told Illinois is the first state to undertake such a complete long range program," Governor Green said as he signed the executive order.

BATTLESHIP MAINE SUNK 45 YEARS AGO

Forty-five years ago Feb. 15 the battleship Maine was sunk in Havana harbor and, with "Remember the Maine" as the rallying cry, became the overt act that led the United States into war with Spain.

One prominent Illinois citizen who recalls the excitement of 1898 from his own experience is State Auditor Arthur C. Lueder, who is the only Spanish war veteran holding elective office in a state house where veterans of the first world war are numerous. Lueder, then 22 years old, was quartermaster sergeant of the First Illinois Volunteer Infantry, the "Dandy First", when the regiment responded promptly for service in Cuba.

"For us young fellows, it was a big affair. We were headed for a strange land to fight a strange foe in behalf of a downtrodden people. Some of our boys didn't come back. And you know you can be killed just as dead in a small war as in a big one."

"Looking back on it now, the Spanish war was a highly important period in our national history because it brought us new interests in faraway places. We took Cuba under our protection and Puerto Rico and we acquired the Philippines, which up to then were as little known to Americans as Guadalcanal was a year ago. We little dreamed then that forty five years later we would be in another war in which the Philippines were a major stake."

NEW TOMMY CORCORAN
No announcement has been made yet, but the President has a new "Tommy Corcoran"—astute young Joe Casey, ex-congressman from Massachusetts. Make a note of him. He will play an important role backstage around congress.

But where Tommy the Cork and Ben Cohen frequently rubbed congress the wrong way, Casey's No. 1 job is to promote White House-congressional harmony.

Casey is also making some Q.T. surveys for the President. One of them is to see whether members of the War Production board are deliberately slanting their actions to smear the New Deal.

Another Q.T. probe is of Elmer Davis' Office of War Information. Casey believes that shrewd, public-minded Davis could be of great value to the administration if asked to pass on more government moves in order to gauge their effect upon public opinion. Casey, therefore, may recommend that FDR submit all directives and executive orders to Davis before release to the public.

On the congressional front Casey plans more visits to the White House by bi-partisan groups, which may be able to give FDR better advice than Harry Hopkins.

Note: So far Casey has refused to accept any salary, but is slated later for a post in Jimmy Byrnes' Office of Economic Stabilization.

WHY STALIN DECLINED

The diplomatic grapevine has brought a new reason why Stalin didn't want to join the backgammon party at Casablanca—the danger of being dragged into a political discussion over future boundaries of Europe.

One year ago Foreign Minister Litvinoff flew to London, took the initiative in discussing post-war boundaries. But the British were gun-shy.

Since then Stalin has reversed his policy of advance boundary agreements, has announced a policy of self-determination of nations. With large Russian and Slavic blocs in Poland, the Baltic states, Rumania, this means a good slice of eastern Europe would join Soviet Russia.

However, some U. S. plus some British leaders now have reversed themselves about not agreeing on boundaries in advance. Perhaps fearing that Russia might reach too far, they want to work out preliminary peace plans now rather than haggle over them at the conference table.

This advance dealing of the boundary cards, according to the diplomatic grapevine, was what Stalin wanted to avoid at Casablanca.

Note: What Russia wants after the war is a slice of Finland, one-half of Poland, the Baltic states, the Carpathian provinces of Hungary, the Dobruja from Rumania, all of Bulgaria, which is very pro-Russian, enough of Yugoslavia—also pro-Russian—to secure an outlet on the Adriatic; and an outlet on the Persian gulf. This would give Russia direct access to the Mediterranean and the Indian ocean. Obviously Churchill, who says he wasn't made prime minister to liquidate the empire, can't be enthusiastic about that.

RED ARMY

United States military observers explain recent Russian successes in terms of a development not generally realized in the United States—liberation of the generals from political domination.

Under the system which prevailed in Russia in the early months of the war, the Red generals were responsible to the political commissars. This made them overcautious, prevented daring, resolute action.

Then came the requirement that commissars themselves take military training and indoctrination. Simultaneously their authority over the generals was removed.

Now the Red army is run by the Red army.

THE RUSSIAN FRONT

Though the Russians admitted Brig. Gen. Pat Hurley to the front lines, they still have not revoked their ban on foreign military observers. Their explanation—for what it's worth—is that they would have to admit Japanese observers as well, since they are still at peace with Japan.

Most impressive to Americans who have been anywhere near the Russian front are the earnest but improvised supply methods. Across the Russian steppes come food and ammunition for the men at the front—behind a team of caribou, or oxen, or on the shoulders of men afoot. Any way and every way, the people of Russia keep supplies moving.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Keep an eye on Dick Patterson, ex-assistant secretary of commerce, now head of RKO, as next U. S. minister to Canada.

A secret session of U. S. senators sat with Chinese leaders the other day to try to drum up more aid to China—now virtually nil, despite Roosevelt's statement that more was being flown in now than went over the Burma road. (FDR didn't let his Far Eastern experts see that speech or he never would have said it).

ON THE HOME FRONT with RUTH WYETH SPEARS

IF THERE is one piece of furniture for which our own period will be famous it is the low coffee table. Our own generation has discovered that low tables are not only convenient but give a greater feeling of space in a room than high ones.

Here is a little coffee table that is as modern as tomorrow. You can make it yourself from a three by four foot piece of half inch plywood with straight cuts of the saw. It requires not one scrap of hardware. Just cut the three sections according to the dimensions given here; place the slot of the narrow piece of the base through the slot in the wide piece; put the

If thawed too quickly meat that has been frozen will likely be tough.

You can freshen up drab waste baskets by pasting on some gay motifs cut from wall-paper, then using a white shellac over the paper.

Set a five-gallon pail of old crank case oil in the tool shed, into which small tools may be dipped after using, this to prevent rusting.

Save the water in which you have boiled rice. Pass any small articles through it after washing; it will semi-starch them.

Felt hats will last longer if brushed with a brush made of hair and not with a whisk broom.

Smear soap on the threads of a screw cap of a jar in which odd bits of paint or varnish are to be saved. The joints will be airtight and the cap will not stick.

Clear hot water to which one teaspoon of baking soda has been added for each gallon of water brightens the gloss on enameled woodwork.

When patching a print dress match the patch with the print so that it will be less noticeable.

A small leak in an aluminum pan may be repaired by placing a flat piece of heavy iron on one side and lightly hammering the hole together on the other side.

Put the wooden salad bowl near the stove after washing, but never over direct or intense heat. Too much heat will cause the wood to warp and perhaps crack, but moderate heat is necessary to dry the bowl thoroughly before putting it away.

Crop of the Sea

Submarine gardens on the Pacific coast which thrilled visitors in glass-bottom boats in peacetime are now being visited by men in diving helmets, picking clumps of sea fern from the lush underwater growths. This is agar sea fern, one of the very essential products that Uncle Sam wants these war days.

Agar-agar, the gelatin made from the fern, gives smoothness to ice cream and contains cheeses. More important, it's the one essential gelatin for which no substitute has been found, in making laboratory tests of drinking water, milk, and food to safeguard American civil and military health.

THE POWER OF THE PRESS

Manufacturers and merchants sense the power of the press. Early they began using it to carry their advertising facts and ideas into homes. And they found it a most profitable way in which to tell their story to buyers. And the buyers in turn found it profitable to deal with those who were willing to state in print the values and services they offered.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

The importance of group riding as a rubber conservation practice has been demonstrated in Pontiac, Mich., where today 20,000 workers roll to work plants in 4,000 cars instead of the 15,000 cars they used daily earlier this year.

2,300 cities and towns with a total population of 12½ millions depend entirely upon automobiles for passenger transportation.

In 1896 The B. F. Goodrich Co. made the first fabric clincher type automobile tire in the 36 x 4 size.

A ton of rubber a year is the collection of the average Brazilian wild rubber gatherer. This explains why men power is the crux of the South American natural rubber problem.

W-N-U RELEASE

THE STORY SO FAR: Judy Jason, who is telling the story, receives an anonymous letter enclosing $800 and asking her to bid for an abandoned church to be auctioned the next day. After the auction the body of a man identified as Roddy Lane is found in a chest in the basement of the church, but disappears a few hours later. To make matters worse, the telephone wires have been cut and the bridge to the mainland blown up. Victor Quade finds a golf club near the chest. The fish shed burns, apparently killing an old man named Brown who is supposed to have lived there, and Uncle Wylie's pipe is found near the demolished shed.

Now continue with Judy's story.

CHAPTER VII

Potter offered to drive as many as could crowd into his car down to the wrecked bridge, and the rest of us started for the inn. Victor whispered to me to search the absentees' rooms for that square diamond. "Too valuable to be left, Quincy says," I felt glad he trusted me to do it.

I got a look into nearly every room—not thorough, of course, but a glance in the most likely places. Uncle Wylie bumped into me on the stairs. "Seen my pipe, Judy?" He fished futilely from pocket to pocket, and then went on down to the kitchen to hunt.

I followed him down to the kitchen. Aunt Nella began hissing at him right before Lily Kendall, who'd gone out to talk with auntie because she didn't want to be alone. Uncle Wylie went down to the ruins of the old shed. He was lifting the shawl when I called to him not to touch anything. Then he just walked around, eyes on the ground, hunting for the pipe Victor had in his pocket. I hadn't told him about it, because I didn't want to alarm him too much with implications; he'd know soon enough. But now I started after him, only to see the car coming back.

They'd tossed a coin to see who'd be left behind. Albion Potter was chosen, but he seemed so reluctant to stay alone that the preacher volunteered.

As to the bridge itself, it just wasn't any more, that's all. The old wooden planks had been blown to splinters and washed away by the swirling waters below.

You see, it had to be a time bomb, Victor had explained; or else have one of the cars stop and someone get out and set off the dynamite fuse, or whatever was used. And the cars didn't stop. No one got out.

"But why couldn't someone from Rockville have blown up the bridge right after we crossed?" somebody asked. (I was told about this afterward.)

That, of course, was possible on account of the darkness. Or it might have been one of those at home on the Head that evening—Hugh or Mr. Quincy or Victor Quade or Lily or Aunt Nella or I. I felt I could eliminate my aunt, Mr. Q., Victor Quade and myself. After all, I was only sure of myself!

The general consensus was that either Mr. Brown had blown the bridge after killing Roddy, or vice versa. Only after the identification of that charred, grisly corpse could one be sure.

Victor said: "Let's try to help one another. Shall we sit on the porch? Judy, go get your uncle."

So I called Uncle Wylie, who came slowly back, looking rather sheepish before his guests, sitting in the hammock, the porch rockers, and even on the steps. Up panted the minister. Had he, too, gotten cold feet? Said he'd get his field glasses and could see anyone approaching, from the inn piazza.

We were still at a standstill. Although so early in the morning, the air was warm. A land breeze had sprung up, which was rapidly dispersing the fog.

At Victor's request I got Aunt Nella to join us.

"You'll only get clam chowder for lunch," she scolded, untying her blue checkered apron and taking the chair Hugh Norcross brought her. "Go ahead with the third degree. Only I didn't set the fire and neither did Wy—my husband. Here's his pipe." Bless her! as Victor would say. She held up an old corn-cob I'd never seen my uncle smoke in my life.

Wylie Gerry flushed. "That's not the one, my dear. Mine is a little briar. Had it in my pocket when I went to town. Smoked it all the evening down to the plumbin' shop with the boys until—" he contemplated his shoes a minute and then looked Quade squarely in the eye. "Wait a minute," Victor Quade interrupted, reaching into his pocket. "Is this your pipe, Mr. Gerry?"

Uncle Wylie reached for the dirty old thing, then he beamed all over. "Why, yes. Yes, that's it." He stuck it comfortably between his teeth. "Where'd you find it? I've hunted everywhere."

"Down by the fish shed, during the fire. Certain it's yours?"

"Sartin I'm sartin. However it got there."

Aunt Nella gasped and began to bristle all over, but before she could say anything the minister cried: "There! What more do you want? Gerry lay on the bench and his pipe rolled out of his hand and started the fire."

"But he wasn't smoking," Albion protested. "I ought to know; he was in my car. You ought to know, too, De Witt. You saw him sitting in the car when we rushed into the inn, excited about the explosion."

"If the pipe set the fire, why didn't it get burned?" I asked. "The bench was burned to cinders."

"How could the pipe have set the fire?" Hugh Norcross cut in. "No pipe stays lit that long. Besides, while we were all down there I dropped my cigarette case. Had to light a match to find it. Looked all around that bench and didn't see any pipe."

Victor was looking at him coolly. "So you lit a match?"

"What of it?"

"Nothing. Only you told us you were over by the Lane castle right after dark when Judy and Mr. Quincy spoke to you. Didn't take another stroll in the same direction and light another match later, did you?"

Hugh nearly fell off the railing. "Say, what is this? You've got a nerve insinuating a thing like that in front of all these people. I had a score to settle with Lane, I'll admit, but not the way things have been turning up around here. I'm not a killer. Nor an incendiary."

Bessie got up and linked her arm in his. "I'll just tell you this much, those of you who don't know. Rodney Lane and I were engaged five years ago. We—we broke it off. Hugh thought he treated me rather shabbily, but there was nothing more to it. Roddy didn't even appear to know me the other night, and I certainly thanked my stars he hadn't married me. What I'd like found out is who snatched Hugh's blue silk scarf from my bureau and Mr. Potter's turpentine. I think we've got a maniac, a kleptomaniac and a what do you call 'em—pyromaniac."

For a moment we all sat trying not to look at poor Bessie Norcross, giving us the lowdown on her unhappy past. I felt awfully sorry for her. Pretty tough to go to a place where romance has touched your heart and then come back with it broken to see if it hurts any more.

"Thank you, Miss Norcross. That's what I mean," Victor said, talking rapidly to give the girl a chance to control herself. "By admitting that affair to us—you've helped us to understand some otherwise ambiguous remarks. The police may not even have to know about it."

"The police!" Bessie stood twisting her handkerchief to knots. She looked as if she'd have another breakdown any minute. Tall, dark, angular, too thin, she had none of her brother's good looks.

Hugh turned to her. "What Quade means is that, if we all come clean, this murder will OUT. Evidently he thinks it's one of us. Just as some of us think it might be funny HE should turn up when he did."

Victor looked at me. "Guess I'll have to tell them, Judy."

"It might be better, Mr. Quade."

Victor came around where he could see us all. "I'm not too flattered none of you recognizes me," he said. "Anyone ever read 'Blood on the Necklace'?" Lily Kendall's opal beads scattered on the porch.

"I have. Gee, it was swell! Why, you ain't—? Now don't tell me!"

"Or 'Window Ledge' or 'Ghost in the Chasm'?" Victor rattled on. "I've heard of them," Bessie said. "And I've read 'em all, Mr. Victor Quade." Mr. De Witt spoke up. "Mighty good reading. A fellow loaned them to me in—Once."

State's Prison, did he mean? His face was purple. Would he explain? I wondered, but he didn't. There was an uncomfortable shuffling till Victor went on suavely:

"You're right. I'm Victor Quade, but my real name is Quade Quinn."

Quade. The other's just a pseudonym. And I am recovering from an attack of rheumatic fever. Therefore the trailer and the rest by the sea. You can verify that much, later. Chose to come on my own name for a little seclusion so I could do another book. Well, you've given me the book."

"You mean you're going to put us all in a book? How thrilling!" Lily squealed.

"I don't know. If I do it would be nothing personal—nothing you'd not wish that your friends might identify you by. A writer can change a story so you wouldn't recognize it as ever having happened to you. But that's not here nor there. Being Victor Quade doesn't give me an alibi."

"I'll say it doesn't," Quincy shot at him.

"However," Victor ignored the interruption, "it does place me—give the rest of you something to go on." "How do we know you didn't cook up the whole thing? Get even with Lane and hide behind your vocation?" I was ashamed for Mr. Quincy.

Victor only smiled and showed his fine white teeth at me. "Miss Jason hinted something or other of the kind—"

"I did not," I stammered. "I never really thought—"

"In your eyes, my dear. I told her, as I'll tell you, that when I plan a murder I won't park my trailer on the spot and leave my car to get away in down in the Rockville garage. I'd just like to say this, as a manufacturer of mystery stories there are certain aspects of this one which are only too apparent. Used them myself in fiction. Now, do you wish me, or shall someone else, act as spokesman so we can clear up some of the muck? Believe me, the police will run the gamut of all your—our lives."

There was a unanimous decision that he should go ahead. Even Mr. Quincy appeared to have less animosity. He banged the rail with his cane.

"I've been hoping, Mr. Quade, if we let you talk you'd give yourself away. Now you've done it, and there's a chance you're O. K. What do you want to know? I'll spill the beans after you show us a few credentials. Can you do it?"

"I don't know," Victor said, fishing in his pocket. He pulled out a billfold, but stuffed it back again. "Guess you've got me. Thought I had a statement from my publisher, but I must have left it at home when I dumped the rest of my pockets. That's a good one. You'll have to take me on faith, mingled with doubt, of course—unless it's in another pocket in the trailer. Shall we go see?" He shrugged. "Personally I can think of a dozen more important—"

"Well, I can't. You come to the Head and hell busts loose. Give Judy and Norcross the keys to your trailer and let 'em look. Only take a jiff." Mr. Quincy tapped the end of each sentence with a cane.

All we needed was direction. No sooner said than done stuff, to relieve the tension. The two of us ran up the pasture to the lovely new trailer. I'd never been inside one before. Compact? Why, it had everything. Everything but the publisher's letter. We locked it up again and hurried to report.

"No letter," Norcross said. "Put you on the same spot with me, Mr. Quade."

"Except that he did have a typewriter. And—and there was a sheet of paper in it," I said.

Hugh Norcross said accusingly: "Go on, Miss Jason. Tell what he'd written."

"It said—it said—there was just a title in capitals."

"Yes. And the title was—'Murder on the Bluff!'" Hugh finished for me. "Now was that a coincidence or was that a coincidence?"

Thaddeus Quincy thumped furiously. "Either he's the maniac or it lets him out and he is Victor Quade. Mystery story, don't you see? I move we let it lie and go on. Mr. Quade will have to stick around where we can keep an eye on him, anyway. What were the dozen more important things you spoke of a moment or two ago?"

Albion Potter leaned forward, wide-eyed. "May I say something?" He seemed awfully self-conscious, speaking up before us all. "It's about—you'll think me foolish, but—a little like this, perhaps—but—don't forget, he took my turpentine. If I'd only discovered it before I went to town I could have bought some more."

I saw Victor give him a half glance, then turn his attention to Bessie Norcross. "The fire does make that missing turpentine seem more portentous. You—you didn't try to clean that spot off your white coat with a little of Mr. Potter's turpentine, did you, Miss Norcross?"

"What spot?" Bessie twirled around to look where we were all looking. There, sure enough, was a big, black, greasy-looking smudge, fading away into yellowish rings. "Good grief! How did I get that on there?" She pulled at the offending skirt and murmured regretfully: "My new white coat!"

Hugh stared fixedly at the spot. "That's my doings," he said. "Sorry. 'Fraid I made it worse, Bess."

JESUS THE GOOD SHEPHERD

LESSON TEXT—John 10:1-18, 27-30.
GOLDEN TEXT—"I am the good shepherd; the good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep."—John 10:11.

Beautiful and meaningful as they are, none of the other figures or types of our Lord's redemptive work have a stronger appeal than that of the good shepherd. Even those who have never tended sheep nor yet seen them under the shepherd's care sense the telling aptness of the allegory of the Good Shepherd. We know how much we are like sheep needing the tender shepherd's care, and we soon learn to know and to trust Christ as the True Shepherd of the flock.

The center of the picture is the Good Shepherd, and it is around Him that we group our thoughts.

I. He Knows His Sheep (vv. 1-5).

At night, whenever possible, the sheep were brought into a fold, a walled-in enclosure with shelters and with a single gate. Many different flocks were kept together under the care of an undershepherd. In the morning the shepherds came to lead forth the flock. They came by the door, not as the thieves of the night, who sought to come in by stealth over the wall.

When the shepherd called, his own sheep responded. We are told that they would not come at the call of a stranger—not being ready to trust him.

The application is obvious, and yet a word is in order. We ought to examine ourselves and see whether we do indeed know our Lord's voice. Do we respond when He calls us? Then, too, let us be on the lookout against those who profess to be shepherds, who call themselves "pastor" or "reverend," and have only one purpose—to despoil the sheep. They are "thieves and robbers"—Jesus said so. They are only interested as long as it pays. The true shepherd cares for his sheep.

II. He Protects His Sheep (vv. 6-15).

Not only thieves, but wild animals would attack sheep, and it is said that often the shepherd died to protect them from harm. But the hireling, serving for what he can get out of it, is not interested any longer. When danger appears, he flees. He has not the real shepherd heart and cares not if the sheep be destroyed. Having stolen them to enrich himself, he will not defend them at the cost of his own life.

Note the sharp contrast of "I am the good shepherd" with the dark picture of the faithless hirelings. Not only does it magnify His goodness, but it deepens the blackness of their treachery.

We should recall that the Good Shepherd is able to protect His sheep; for while He lays down His life for them, He takes it again in victory over sin and death (see vv. 17, 18). The Saviour seemed to have been defeated at Calvary, but He arose again, and ever liveth to make intercession on our behalf (Heb. 7:25).

III. He Seeks Other Sheep (v. 16).

The other sheep Jesus had in mind were probably the Gentiles. The believers He then had were Jews, but the day was to come when the Gentiles were to hear and believe. His desire for them may well stir in our hearts an eagerness to go out and bring in all—both Jew and Gentile—who will, by believing in Christ, become members of His one fold.

Note the word "must" in verse 16. It does not say "if convenient," nor "when we can raise enough money," nor "after our local debts are paid." We will go out and seek others. There is a divine imperative here—it "must" be done.

Let us not fail to gather the full significance of the expression "one flock, one shepherd." We are not interested in any manufactured unity of man-made organizations. Certainly we will not accept union which means compromise of essential truth. But unity under Christ, the one great Shepherd, that we want—yes and will have. He makes that certain—"they shall be one flock."

Let us not put hindrances in the way of that kind of unity, and let us not be delinquent about seeking the "other sheep." Now a final word.

IV. He Keeps All His Sheep (vv. 27-30).

These words (said after a period of weeks had elapsed) stress the blessed assurance which comes to those who follow Christ. Jesus rebuked the Jews for their unbelief, telling them that they were not His sheep.

Those who are His have been given to Him by the Father—an eternal gift to Him—and He gives to them eternal life.

The power back of this whole matter is evident in verse 30. Christ is God. He who is in Christ's hand is also in the Father's hand, "and no man is able to pluck them out of the Father's hand." Instead of trying to modify that statement, or to quarrel with those who believe it, every Christian ought to accept it and shout "Hallelujah!"

'Scrap' Nitrogen Now Is Salvagable

Its Loss Usually Due To Lack of Management

"Scrap" nitrogen, ordinarily wasted through poor handling of manure piles, can be effectively salvaged on millions of farms to help take the place of chemical nitrogen now being extensively used for the manufacture of war explosives.

While American agriculture will receive almost as much nitrogen as usual next spring, it will go mostly to growers of vegetables, fruits, potatoes, sugar beets and other crops considered of special value to the war program, according to Paul J. Rood, extension specialist, soils department, Michigan State college.

Thus the manure pile takes on a new value, for manure is rich in nitrogen. Almost two-thirds of the total plant food value of average farm manure is in the nitrogen. Most of the nitrogen value, however, is in the liquids—usually lost because of lack of care.

Surest method of saving this valuable nitrogen supply is to change the present methods of manure management on most farms. This means stopping the practice of throwing the manure out of the barn window or door to stand out in the weather, perhaps under the dripping eaves of the building until spring. It means saving the liquids which are ordinarily drained off or evaporated.

One pound of superphosphate for each animal each day, placed in the cow gutters and in the horse stalls is effective in saving nitrogen lost by passing into the air. In the pen type barn or in the cattle and sheep feeding pens and in the pens of young cattle, the same rule should be followed—one pound of superphosphate for each animal daily.

Long experience has proved it will pay to apply this superphosphate to the manure.

Pine

The story of the pine forests of the South is a tragedy which Science changed into a romance of success. In an earlier day, oil, later distilled into turpentine, was sapped from southern pines by cutting great gashes in the bark which permanently injured the trees. The scientist, Charles Herty, revolutionized the industry by showing growers how to substitute shallow slashes in the bark which would effectively draw out the sap without killing the tree. As a result, turpentine forests have been saved for repeated crops, year after year.

Today, pine oil is being extracted from old stumps and being used in the textile industry and in the manufacture of perfumes. Camphor is being made from turpentine and pine oil, replacing oriental camphor at lower cost.

Manufacture of wrapping paper, corrugating board and insulation are booming industries using four million cords of pine annually. Waste sawdust and wood chips are now going into plastics.

Farm Notes

The simplest way to avoid chick losses during the first four weeks is to buy them with a guarantee that the chicks will live and grow for the first month.

Pork can be made safe for human consumption, so far as dangerous trichinae are concerned, by proper freezing. U. S. department of agriculture scientists have determined after many tests.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feeling tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Dear Folks:

Hope you got my announcement. Yes, I finally got my Commission as flight officer. I graduated and left California on the 18th. I'm now at LMAAB, Maxton, N. C. getting a little more tactical training. We practice hauling Air Borne Infantry Cargo and Artillery. It will probably be a couple of months before we are ready to go over and help get this mess settled, the sooner the better. I have quite a lot of training to do as yet. Right now we are having classes in Code. Lectures every day on different subjects that are confidential and will probably help us a lot when we get into combat. We have a lot of conditioning to do. This morning a 4 mile hike, calisthenics, and run the obstacle course. Sure would like to see you all. Such a thing is possible but not probable.

The weather here is very nice although the last few days it's been raining. Would sure like to hear from some of the fellows. Believe me this being an officer is a lonely life at first. A guy has to get acquainted all over again. Well I guess I better sign off for now. See you all after the War.

Your friend,

Flight Officer John E. Gotham,

Dear Friends:

I received your Xmas package about the 15th of Jan. due to moving around but everything was swell and useful. I was in the hospital when I received it and the cake made it quite cheerful as doctor let us stay up till 10 pm. and we had a real party, radio, milk, cake.

Truax Field is not much fun, it's all study and work and we haven't much time to ourselves. We have 18 inches of snow and it's about 5 below, so you can see there isn't much to do but haul coal for our stoves. That was a nice long letter and I'd sure like to have some more.

Yours truly,

Pvt. Fred Parenti, AFTS 618th,

Dear Friends:

Received your letter a few days ago was glad to hear from you. I am OK so far, hope the same back there.

In your letter you stated that Emory Fulton is at Camp Pickett, well I was there only a few weeks, left before he got there so I didn't get the chance to see him. Is he still in the states or is he over seas by now.

You also ask if I had an extra picture, I have none, but if you see one of the boys they may have an extra one.

It will be three months soon that we left the States had a nice trip across got good eats on the boat and we got good eats here.

This will be the first time that I had not seen snow or cold weather, over here everything is green and flowers are in bloom suppose back there you have snow.

We get some mail just about every week so far, I received a few copies of the Tinley paper since I have been over here.

Christmas Day I received the cigarettes from the Citizens Service Committee, thanks a lot.

Over here we can buy US made cigarettes for 7 cents a pack, we also get some issue to us for ice cream, gum and soda is scarce over here.

Well there's not much that I know of right now as I'll close hope to hear from you again.

Citizens Service Committee:

Dear Friends:

Writing you a few lines after a joyous Christmas to let you know that I'm feeling fine. I also wish to thank you for the Christmas gift you sent me I certainly appreciate same. Well friends, after spending Christmas Eve and part of Christmas day on guard I must say we were well rewarded by a wonderful prepared candle light dinner in the evening, consisting of Turkey, dressing, potatoes etc. Including chocolate candy nuts a pack of cigarettes and a cigar which friends is something to be very thankful for. Try and compare this meal with one we would have at home and you'll say we had everything one could ask for. Now to top off the evening we had a Camp show consisting of the boys in our Camp, entitled "White Xmas" featuring the song by the same name from Holiday Inn, which was very good and full of laughter, also we were able to get one quart of Ale and some beer per man. Well friends so much for Christmas. And as for New Year lets pray and hope for a Victorious and Happy One.

With best wishes to all my friends,

Al Meyer

Dear friends,

I wish to thank you for the very useful gift of toilet articles I received when I was inducted into the army.

I am in the air corp and will be located here for about four weeks to get my basic training. When I have finished that, I will be sent to an aerial gunnery school, upon completion of that course I will be sent to an aircraft armory school. At present there isn't much to write about except the weather. One day it was 20 degrees above zero and two days later it was 80 above. The climate is very damp. I would appreciate it very much if you could get the address of John C. Becker. I believe he is located somewhere in Camp Gruber, Okla.

Thanking you again,

Down the ways goes a new Tank Landing Ship to join America's Navy.
Following modern mass-production methods, this vessel was constructed in sections which were electrically welded together at the launching ways.

Ship Building and Electric Power in Northern Illinois

In time of war, as in peace, electricity is the power of industrial activity, the force that speeds production.

Here, in this great center of war production, every hour of the day electric power is helping to build ships, tanks, planes and hundreds of other implements essential to victory on the land, on the sea and in the air.

Day and night, it is our responsibility to supply electric power for war production in this area.
And to this task we are devoting the skill and efficiency attained through years of experience.

At another ship building plant in the Chicago area a Naval Patrol
Vessel is built in sections which are fitted and welded together.

Electric arc welding speeds the fabricating of sub-assemblies as well as the joining of large component sections of Patrol Vessels.

IF YOU care to intermingle in sporting arguments today — and who doesn't in sport—I can lead you to any group of soldiers, sailors, marines, airmen, coastguardmen and merchant seamen, and they'll take your ears off.

Grantland Rice

It has been my privilege to be with many of these men lately — North and South, East and West—and they all want answers, direct answers.

This happens to be the greatest sporting country this spinning planet has ever known, so you can understand the interest these kids have in almost anything connected with sports.

They like to argue about anything. At the last gathering they put out a tough one—

"Who are the best straight-power men all our games have ever known? Just power. Football and baseball—boxing especially? Also, golf and tennis on the side?"

If you are wrong, they come back at you in a rush—for they know their sports.

A day or two ago they laid down a salvo, a fusillade and a barrage that had me dizzy, even looking back over 40 years. Just power—raw power—never mind the rest of it.

Heading the List

You don't get much time to think these things over. They come at you like a flock of wolves.

Here are the answers I gave them—the eager and healthy, the crippled and the burned:

Football—Bronko Nagurski—who, as Steve Owen once said, is the only back who could run his own interference. Even his blockers got out of the way—228 pounds of fast-moving dynamite. Power means speed and bulk. Nagurski had both. Bronko is the man Bernie Bierman of Minnesota and Iowa Navy picked as his top man in football. Largely power.

In his fading years I caught Bronko in a shower after some tough game—slapped him on the back—and almost broke my hand. I might as well have been socking a hydrant.

The All-Time Top

Baseball—Babe Ruth. The Babe hit over 700 home runs in big-league play. On the side he also hit more than another batch of home runs in exhibitions and World Series.

The Babe is so far ahead of all the power hitters there is no one even close. Lou Gehrig was a great power man. Pound for pound, so is Mel Ott. Ted Williams is no punk.

Boxing—There are only two men to consider in this field—Jack Dempsey and Joe Louis. Pound for pound, they were no better than Ruby Robert Fitzsimmons and Sam Langford.

But I'll still string with Dempsey and Louis.

Jim Jeffries was a punishing fighter, but not a direct killer. Gene Tunney was a boxer.

Harry Greb was a whirlwind, minus any killing wallop.

But when Dempsey and Louis leveled off, something always happened in a hurry.

Dempsey had greater speed than Louis had when the Old Mauler was at his peak at Toledo and before.

Louis had more power in both hands. For power I'll give you Dempsey and Louis—or Louis and Dempsey.

To my mind the power man of golf has been Jimmy Thomson, with Sam Snead close.

I've seen Thomson carry over 300 yards too many times. I hear about other phenoms who can outdrive Thomson. Maybe once in a while. Ask the pros.

The power tennis player—I'll go with Bill Tilden. Service or forehand—Big Bill was the top man.

I've seen him knock the racket from the hands of stars, blasting them off the courts when he felt in that mood.

Maurice McLoughlin had a high-power service. But the Californian never had Tilden's all-around power. Nothing like it. So here are our power men of sport—Nagurski, Ruth, Dempsey, Louis, Thomson, Tilden.

BRIEFS:

Frank Strafaci, of golfing fame, is a staff sergeant with the army in Australia.

The St. Louis Browns led all American league teams in night games last year, winning 16 while losing 7. Johnny Niggling, veteran knuckle baller, won six for them.

Four players on the 1943 roster of the New York Giants were introduced to the major leagues by the late John McGraw. They were Carl Hubbell, Mel Ott, Harry Danning and Hank Leiber.

THE biggest athletic plant in the world is located at the Great Lakes naval training base, less than 50 miles north of Chicago.

The sports facilities of Great Lakes are statistically staggering. Paul Bunyan would find conditions ideal. The plant has to be big. Roughly, the many teams there include 136,200 participants, although quite a few of the sailors are on more than one team, since there are approximately 75,000 at the station now. By actual count there were 50,800 men taking part in various sports at one time.

Ten huge gymnasiums provide 40 regulation size basketball courts, 10 swimming pools, 11 recreation centers with boxing rings, table tennis, etc., and 10 bowling alleys.

One of those 10 swimming pools is the largest in the world. It's practically a sixth Great Lake, measuring 165 feet by 75, its width being as great as the length of standard tanks. The pool's capacity is 660,000 gallons. It will accommodate 700 sailors at a time.

Participation

In checking each sport, we find: Basketball—A total of 20,000 players. There are 500 squads in recruit training with 20 men on each squad, 60 in ship companies with 10 on each, 50 in the service school with 10 men and 50 in the hospital unit with 10 men on each.

Track—A total of 20,000 men entered the station's championship tournament.

Boxing—The title tournament drew 5,000 entries, embracing all weight divisions except flyweight. None of the sailors are that small—112 pounds or less.

Volley Ball—Approximately 30,000 men competing.

Bowling—Total of 300 teams in league matches; 20,000 sailors participating.

Approximately 20,000 men take part in each of these sports: softball, touchball and crew racing. Only 200 men compete in swimming, but all sailors at the station are forced to pass rigorous tests each week.

Navy Baseball

One of the most amazing records was made by the baseball club, coached by Lieut. Mickey Cochrane, former Athletics and Tiger star. In 77 games against professionals, semipro and college teams, the sailor nine attracted 375,000 fans and a gate of $150,000. That was an average attendance of 5,000 a game—considerably better than several major league teams could show for their home attendance.

Great Lakes has the answer for individuals who question the value of "varsity" athletic teams in the armed services.

The training station maintains varsity teams in three sports—basketball, baseball and football. Last year those teams played a total of 125 games before 600,000 spectators, grossing $265,000. Baseball was the biggest drawing card; 36 basketball games drew 100,000 customers and earned $15,000. The 12 football games with college teams grossed approximately $125,000.

These figures give you a fairly good idea of the vast sports program in progress at Great Lakes. Those who have visited the station are agreed that civilian athletics, even in the bigger universities, are almost trivial in comparison.

The Great Lakes athletic program is unsurpassed. It is necessary to use superlatives in describing its progress because of the sheer size of the undertaking. Great Lakes has supplied the right answer to the criticism of the comparatively few individuals who dislike the thought of athletics for the armed forces.

SPORT SHORTS

Frank Strafaci, of golfing fame, is a staff sergeant with the army in Australia.

The St. Louis Browns led all American league teams in night games last year, winning 16 while losing 7. Johnny Niggling, veteran knuckle baller, won six for them.

Four players on the 1943 roster of the New York Giants were introduced to the major leagues by the late John McGraw. They were Carl Hubbell, Mel Ott, Harry Danning and Hank Leiber.

PROMPT REPLY

Two revellers entered an elevator. The attendant waited. A moment later a woman got in.

The first man politely removed his hat. The other was too far gone to remember etiquette.

The attendant closed the doors. "Floors, please," he said.

"Three," said the woman. "Seven," said the first reveller. "Seven," repeated the second.

The first nudged his companion. "Your hat," he ordered.

The second nodded. "Oh, yes," he hiccupped. "Six and three-quarters!"

That's Different

Preacher—I know Mrs. Smith is the type who would suffer greatly for her belief.

His Wife—Yes, I know she does that quite regularly.

Preacher—She does? I'm gratified to know that. Tell me about it.

His Wife—Well, she suffers plenty for her belief that she can squeeze a number 6 foot into a number 4 shoe.

HE'LL LIVE

"He's the living image of his father."

"That doesn't really matter as long as he's healthy."

Right on Time

The chief of the village fire brigade was making his report to the chairman of the village council.

"Yes, sir," he said, proudly, "we put out the fire just ten minutes after we got there."

"Very praiseworthy," said the chairman. "Had it got a good start on you?"

"I should say it had," said the fire chief. "When we got there only the foundation was standing."

Lazy Bones

"I regret to say I saw your husband taken to the police station in a car—conveyance just now."

"Ah, Joe's a one, he is—he never walks nowhere!"

No Fancy Menu

Waiter—Would you like some more applesauce with your pork chop, sir?

Customer—No, just tell me the truth about it.

Old But Good and True

Betty—Mother, what is puppy love?

Dad (behind paper)—The beginning of a dog's life!

Well Preserved

"Why do women live longer than men?"

"Well, they say paint is a preservative, don't they?"

Interlude

"It is rude for a man to fall asleep while his wife is talking."

"But, good heavens, a man has to sleep some time!"

Diplomatic

She (coyly)—How old do you think I am?

He (gallantly)—Whatever it is, you don't look it.

OVER AND OVER

Mother—What? A 20-page letter from that soldier friend of yours at camp. What did he say?

Daughter—He says he loves me.

Not So Much

"Hear Morse over there bragging about his wife?"

"What's he saying?"

"He's telling Clark that all he is he owes to her."

"Humph! Do you call that bragging?"

Exchange

Excited Depositor (with counterfeit bill)—You mean to tell me this money is worthless?

Cashier—Not exactly. It was worth $10 to the man who gave it to you.

Notes of an Innocent Bystander:

The Magic Lanterns: Alfred Hitchcock's latest, "Shadow of a Doubt," is one of the most exciting melodrama-masterpieces . . . Nobody on the stage or screen is a better actress than little Margaret O'Brien. Most aren't as good. She tears the heart out of your throat in "Journey for Margaret," and in a patriotic short, starring J. Cagney, Margaret delivers The Gettysburg Address better, perhaps, than Lincoln himself . . . The March of Time's "We Are the Marines" is the first release from that group that seemed dull . . . Real marines in action at the front, too, but the actors in "Commandos Strike at Dawn" took your breath away with their phony war . . . In that film Lillian Gish's bit-playing didn't hold me, at all . . . I kept thinking: "Here she is appearing in a propaganda picture, although she attacked war a year ago, by accusing Hollywood of 'forcing' her into a film in 1917 to arouse hatred, etc." . . . "China Girl" is only entertainment when audiences kid it.

The Coast-to-Coasters: The big query in Brazil: "Why did your country stop letting us hear Lowell Thomas now and then?" . . . Please send that item to Mr. Nelson Rockefeller's Inter-American Committee, Washington, and help cement relations with South America . . . Joe Besser's interruptions on Jack Benny's show are the most amusing gags in a long time . . . The endless interruptions on Infopleez ("The best tunes of all go to Carnegie Hall!") must have robbed that attraction of many listeners. Most irritating. And so you remedy matters by simply dialing to another program . . . George Denny's "Town Hall Meeting of the Air" remains a radio must . . . The claims here and there that certain radio news commentators "have the largest audience in the U. S." were debunked by the radio page in the current issue of Time, which lists the "first ten programs," and names only one reporter.

The Intelligentsia: "The Sergeant Says," a first effort by Sgt. James Cannon of Fort Dix and PM, is crowded with first-rate wordage—which is hardly news to all of us who said he could write long ago . . . "Guadalcanal Diary," (Random House) by Richard Tregaskis of Int'l News, is the Feb. Book-of-the-Month—a literary monument to American heroism . . . Another first effort is "The Listeners," a novel by Lt. Herbert Whiting (Appleton-Century). Critics predict a public for it . . . Reporter Robert Casey's "Torpedo Junction" (we just caught up with it) is a Bobbs-Merrill corker.

The Magazines: The cunning and moxie of the Hitler haters inside the Reich are reported in "Spy at Work" in The Atlantic. Jon B. Jansen and Stefan Weyl thrill you with the adroit hoodwinkings. The stunt becomes all the more admirable when you know they operated with hardly any money . . . This Week introduces the guy who did most to make a monkey out of Goebbels (excepting Nature, who made him look like one). He is, according to Curt Reiss, the Soviet propagandist's Lozovsky. His hooting on the Berlin newscastings choked lies in Nazi gullets, and his pamphleteering has caused Hitler to double his carpet devourings . . . Theatre Arts Monthly cites Katharine Cornell's tribute to Thornton Wilder. His translation of "Lucrece," in which she flopped, is described by Miss C. as "my favorite failure" . . . Rollin Kirby's cartoon page in Look should be pasted in every shop window in the U. S.—to remind grippers to jump from the tallest skyscraper. Kirby's is the best push-in-the-face yet.

The Front Pages: Alexander Woolcott's typewriter used to bite people, but it never showed as many fangs as the one that delivered the obit on him for the H-Trib. The piece lifted eyebrows all over town, so unsparing was it. Probably would have got plaudits from the victim—who hated drooling pollyanna fakery . . . The day after Benito's empire died in Tripoli, the Italian rags started giving him sass. One Milan gazette spat in his eye. That's how it goes with losers. Old Baldy couldn't get a worse punishment than hoots from the crowds who once "vive'd" his balcony hamming . . . Mostly you agree with Walter Duranty, but not when, in a mag piece, he calls himself a second rate reporter. They don't come any firster . . . Walter Kerr filed some paragraphs to the Reid family's paper as "a Moscow gossip column." If he wants a title for it, how about "Sovietecra"?

Quotation Marks-manship: Rupert Hughes: Her face was her chaperone . . . Faith Baldwin: She was torn between love and booty . . . Anon: When you talk, you only say something you know. When you listen, you learn what someone else knows . . . F. O. Repploer: She sat up like an exclamation point . . . W. L. McElvaney: The whispered goody of one to never see again . . . John Kennedy: A military expert is one who tells you what is going to happen tomorrow—and then tells you why it didn't.

ORLAND PARK

Attention is called to the membership and to the public as well as to the importance of supporting these events. With the withdrawal of WPA funds and the failure of the Village Board to enact the necessary legislation to provide support from tax funds, our library is now dependent, for the time being, on the contributions it receives from the Woman's club and from the amounts realized by Tag Days and sales such as these. It is therefore necessary that every public spirited citizen of Orland Park and especially those who have children who make use of the library facilities, who themselves are patrons of it to give anything that will help its continued functioning, their wholehearted support.

Tuesday Feb. 9, at St. Francis hospital Blue Island a baby boy weighing 7 3/4 lbs. and named Wm. James Hallinan was officially received and announced that his papa and mamma were Harry and LaVerne Hallinan of Blue Island. Both of the parents are former Orlandites, Harry being the son of Mrs. Gustie Hallinan and LaVerne the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Murphy. The baby and mother are both doing fine and the father is expected to be normal again in a short time.

The two latest Orland boys to join Uncle Sam's bunch of fighting men are Sherman S. Knox Jr. and Clarence Creer who left for Camp Grant last Saturday.

Thursday Feb. 11 the Orland Park PTA observed Founders Day and fittingly celebrated the 45th Anniversary of the Founding of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers and the 15th birthday of its own founding.

In a colorful ceremony, tributes were paid to the National Founders, Alice McClellan Birney and Phoebe Apperson Hearst. Two mammoth birthday cakes one in honor of the 45th birthday of the National Congress and the other commemorating our own 15th birthday occupied the center of the picture. In the candle lighting ceremony, Mrs. Bruce Smyth 2nd vice president of the Illinois Congress lit the candle on the birthday cake of the National organization and Mrs. Knox, President of the Orland Park unit lit the one on the local unit cake. Candles were also lit to represent the years of service of the different presidents who have served the local unit during the 15 years of its existence. The following participated in the candle lighting ceremony:

Mrs. H. Adele Cooper, Mrs. Geo. Gee Jr. representing Mrs. Geo. Cox, Mrs. H. Henke representing Mrs. Louis Arnold, Mrs. Frogner, representing Mrs. Geo. Estand; Mrs. T. Kelly representing Mrs. Lawrence Uthe, Mrs. Earl Reish Sr. Mrs. Geo. Yunker representing Mrs. Chas. Maddox, and Mrs. Sherman Knox.

The musical numbers were played by Mrs. Edw. Manning. Following the ceremony Mrs. Bruce Smyth addressed the unit taking for her theme The PTA as a Force in Home Defense.

A short but happy social period was indulged in before the serving of the refreshments and was in charge of Mrs. Herbert Tappenbeck, Sec. and Recreation chairman. Mrs. H. Adele Cooper 1st Pres. of the Orland unit cut the local Birthday cake.

Refreshments were served by a committee consisting of Mesdames C. Rust, H. Henke, E. Oranger, A. Johnson, C. Frogner, H. Creer W. Schussler and H. Adele Cooper.

Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Brett attended the Conference for southern District at Auburn Park church 75th and Harvard, Chicago last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Kimmel have received word that their son Pvt. Ralph Kimmel has been made a Corporal.

Wm. Elkins, former Orland High school student and nephew of Mrs. Harold Morlock has returned safely to the United States after having the unusual experience of having been a member of the crew of three different naval vessels, the aircraft carriers Hornet, Yorktown and the Lexington at the time they were torpedoed. He is located in California. His address is Wm. Elkins, AMN 2-c CASU, -5 NAS, US Navy, San Diego Calif.

The Laurel camp 1796 RNA will meet next Thursday evening, Feb. 25 at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Marie Heiting. Members are urged to make an effort to attend.

The WSCS of the Methodist church will meet in the church parlors Feb. 25 for an all day session. The usual pot luck dinner will be served at noon.

Sunday afternoon, February 14th, 1943 and following Sundays to assist in making out income tax returns. Rates very reasonable.

Pvt. Don Brennan, USMC is spending an eight day furlough at the home of his parents Judge and Mrs. Ray Brennan.

About 20 members of the Orland Park Womans Club attended the meeting of Feb. 10 in the home of Mrs. Ella Loebe. Three special cakes provided the refreshments, one appropriately decorated in observance of Valentines day, another trimmed in a patriotic motif and the third, a birthday cake in honor of the natal anniversary of the hostess Mrs. Loebe. The committee in charge of the refreshments was Mrs. Ella Loebe, Mrs. Clarence Carlson and Mrs. Sherman Knox. Tea and coffee were served and the pouring was presided over by Mrs. Geo. Gee Sr. and Mrs. Paul Sanders.

Mrs. Sanders spoke on Nutritional problems presented by the War and her talk was replete with information and suggestions concerning this important subject gleaned from the latest findings from research work at the University of Illinois.

Mrs. Stewart Loebe read several letters of acknowledgement and thanks from service men who have been the recipients of Christmas remembrances from the club.

A report on the bake sale in the Loebe store showed a very satisfactory financial return. Mrs. Geo. Gee Jr. and Mrs. Sherman Knox were the committee in charge. Another bake and food sale will be held Feb. 27 with Mrs. J. Pomroy and Mrs. Del-Beccaro in charge.

SERVICE LETTERS

Jan. 31, 1943.

Dear friends,
I wish to thank you for the nice box you sent me at Xmas. My buddies and I enjoyed the candy and I have made good use of everything sent me. At the present time we are on desert maneuvers in Arizona. The days are warm and the nights cold at this time of the year. We sleep in tents on folding cots, there are six men in each tent. The food is good and there is plenty of it. Two or three boys from Orland Park board out here with me, but I don't think they live in Orland Park.

Thank you again, sincerely yours
Pvt. Sherwin C. Liess.

American Leg. Aux., Orland Park. Mrs. Kruspe, Chr. Dear friends:
Just a few lines to thank you for the swell Xmas package. It was greatly appreciated and went a long way in making Xmas brighter. The package came on Xmas day but since that date I've been quite busy and I haven't had time to thank you sooner. I hope some day to be able to return favors, but until then I can only offer my best wishes for the New Year.

Until it's over, over here, I remain appreciatively yours,
Jack Toelle.
